Topic 7 - Supporting Volunteers After Deployment

Returning from Deployment

Generally, CEW volunteers redeploy/demobilize through the National Deployment Center for Civilians (NDC)

before returning to home station. There, they undergo a post deployment health assessment, return any clothing, equipment, and weapons, if issued, and get a debriefing.

See the NDC instructions for returning from deployment

Further important information on redeployment/demobilization processing can be found in the CEW web site FAQ.

Topic 7 - Supporting Volunteers After Deployment

Reintegration into the Workplace

When your volunteer returns, you will have to reintegrate him or her into your workplace. There may have been significant changes over the course of their deployment. Do any of these apply to you? Think of possible ways to mitigate the effect of these on the volunteer, then click each to compare your answer.

responsibilities.

What Are My Responsibilities After Deployment?

HR Specialists are designated for CEW support in your component. Check with them to see what your (vs the HR Specialist's) responsibilities are after deployment.

Your responsibilities will include all HR functions you normally perform as this person's supervisor. In addition, you will (subject to your component's policies and procedures):

- Appropriately welcome the volunteer home. See Topic 9 Recognition and Appreciation of Volunteers for more information.
- Implement the Family Care Plan, when needed, regarding post-deployment issues.
- Consider volunteers for all appropriate awards. See Topic 9 for award possibilities.
- Supply metrics data requested by the head of your DoD component on CEW program participation by your employees.
- Monitor for PTSD and other signs of stress such as anxiety and depression.
